

The U.S. Army Expeditionary Contracting Command is a subordinate command of the U.S. Army Contracting Command. ECC Soldiers, civilians and contractors provide the Army with effective and agile contracting support for U.S. Army service component commanders in support of Army, joint, and installation operations outside the continental United States. The command's responsive, worldwide contracting support acquires equipment, supplies and services vital to Soldiers' missions and well-being.

ECC is headquartered at Redstone Arsenal, Alabama. It is a one-star command comprised of nine contracting support brigades, 17 contracting battalions, and 108 contracting teams that provide expeditionary contracting support to Army and joint forces.

ECC utilizes best practices and expert-level oversight to provide warfighters with premier contracting support. It accomplishes its global operational missions with a professional workforce of more than 1,000 military and 800 civilians, foreign local nationals and contractors in service at more than 30 locations worldwide. ECC provides direct support across the full spectrum of military operations to Army and joint warfighters and Department of Defense organizations around the globe.

The Soldiers and civilians of ECC also provide contracting support to activities and organizations supporting Soldiers and their families stationed overseas on U.S. Army garrisons - assisting in keeping America's Soldiers and their families ready and resilient. ECC supports approximately 180 expeditionary missions in 52 countries each year. In fiscal year 2014, ECC completed more than 29,000 contracting actions valued at more than $1.74 billion - providing effects-based contracting to its global customer base.

A combat multiplier, ECC's unique command structure maintains the capability to deploy anywhere in the world on short notice to provide operational contract support planning, contract policy and oversight, contract execution, contract administration and contract surveillance in support of deployed forces. When designated as the lead service for contracting, ECC can deploy its headquarters mission command capability to establish a Joint Theater Support Contracting Command.

In 2015, ECC is deploying a CSB and two CBns to support Operation Freedom's Sentinel in Afghanistan and the transition of the contracting mission from the U.S. Central Command Joint Theater Support Contracting Command to the Army as the Lead Service for Contracting.

With a wealth of contracting expertise, ECC professionals are dedicated to providing the highest quality contracting support to all of its customers, whenever and wherever needed. The responsive contracting solutions and oversight provided by the command serves as a force multiplier for keeping the Army capable and ready for any mission requirement.

ECC executes mission command for seven contracting support brigades aligned to support Army service component commands: the 408th CSB (U.S. Army Central), 409th CSB (U.S. Army Europe), 410th CSB (U.S. Army South), 411th CSB (U.S. Forces Korea), 412th CSB (U.S. Army North), 413th CSB (U.S. Army Pacific), and 414th CSB (U.S. Army Africa). Two more CSBs, the 418th and 419th, are in direct support to III Corps and XVIII Airborne Corps, respectively. Additionally, ECC executes direct mission command of the 905th Contracting Battalion, Fort Bragg, North Carolina, providing direct support to U.S. Army Special Operations Command.

Note: ACC integrates the majority of its stateside-based contracting units into its installation and contracting center operations to grow experienced and technically proficient contingency contracting officers to support global mission requirements.
